THE TEMPLE OF BÎGEH

BY AYLWARD M. BLACKMAN M. A.

Laycock Student of Egyptology at Worcester College, Oxford,
Late Oxford University Nubian Research Scholar,
Formerly Scholar of Queen's College.
The following record of the Temple of Bígeh was made in April and early May, 1910. Owing to the intense heat of the pile of granite boulders that forms the Island of Bígeh, the development of negatives proved very difficult, and although I managed to obtain ice from the Sudan Government's steamers at Shellal the results were not altogether satisfactory. I have been helped out of this difficulty however by my friend Dr. Junker of Vienna through whose friendly offices I obtained permission to publish in this volume the magnificent photographs of Bígeh Temple belonging to the Königlichen Akademie der Wissenschaften at Berlin. I trust that in spite of the war both Dr. Junker and the Akademie will accept my warmest thanks for their generosity. But I have to thank Dr. Junker for other favours. He not only gave me much help while I was preparing my manuscript, but also read through the proofs, making several important suggestions and corrections. My best thanks are also due to Mr. Griffith for editing the Demotic graffiti (see p. 47), to Professor Hunt for editing the little Greek inscription on p. 49, and to Miss Porter for again furnishing me with full bibliographical particulars.

THE TEMPLE OF BÎGEH.

PART I.

INTRODUCTION AND TEXT.

The island of Bîgeh which lies between Philæ and El-Heseh (Pl. II. 1), is, with the exception of the last named, the southernmost of the islands in the First Cataract. Like El-Heseh Bîgeh consists of a number of small rugged granite hills intersected by winding valleys. At the water's edge, wherever there is a sufficient deposit of Nile-mud, the thrifty inhabitants raise their scanty crop of vegetables and dura, while they build their houses (Pl. II, 2 and 4) upon any available ledge on the hill-sides. In one of the valleys, in the centre of the island, is the modern cemetery with the tomb of the local sheykh in its midst (Pl. II, 3).

The temple is situated on the east shore opposite Philæ, and, till the raising of the water-level by the Aswan dam, stood some way back from the river. There was a stone quay or landing-stage in front of the pylon, but some little distance away from it. This has now disappeared beneath the water which comes quite close up to the pylon itself. Immediately behind the temple rise the granite hills, upon the boulders composing which numbers of graffiti are to be found. In former years the temple was surrounded with houses (Pl. III, 1). These have recently been demolished and the precincts cleared of all encumbrances.

Like the temples of Kalabsheh, Dendur, Ajûala and Halfa, that of Bîgeh also appears to have been erected on a terrace or platform, composed no doubt of the underlying ruins of earlier edifices. The original substructure, however, has been so enveloped in modern cement that it is now impossible to determine its exact nature (Pl. III, 2). Most of the temple has been destroyed, all that now remains being the gate-way of the pylon (1) and the greater part of the façade of the outer hall. This façade consists of four columns (2), adorned with the elaborate floral capitals usual in the Ptolemaic and early Roman periods, combined with a screen or curtain-wall of about half the height of the columns (3).

(2) Even these poor attempts at husbandry have now had to be abandoned owing to the increased height of the water-level.
(3) For an account of the ancient cemeteries see Reisner, op. cit., p. 102-111.

What remains of the outer hall is the work of Ptolemy XIII, but the reliefs on the pylon gate-way were executed in the reign of Augustus, whose cartouches appear above the head of the officiating king in all the scenes, and also in the dedicatory inscriptions (e. g. p. 4: f) in this part of temple.

The scenes and inscriptions on the exterior walls of the pylon gate-way are executed in sunk relief (en creux), as are also those on the east (exterior) face of the screen, on the columns, and on the east jambs and interior walls of the door-way, of the outer hall.

The scenes and inscriptions on the interior walls of the pylon gate-way, on the west face of the screen, and on the west jambs of the door, of the outer hall, are in low relief.

All that now remains of the north pylon-tower is a fragment of the west wall adjoining the gate-way. On it is a small portion of a scene showing part of the figure of a goddess (?) who is standing —.

Only a small portion of the frame of this scene is left. What remains is exactly like the corresponding part of the frame enclosing scenes II and III (see p. 96).

COLUMN 4 (Pls. XXI, XXIV, and XXV).

Published: See CHAMPOLLION, Notices descriptive, I, 160, for a general description and for the cartouches in a, and the text of b; see also L., D., Text IV, 176, for name and titles of Hathor at end of b, and DENON, Voyage, 116, 2, for a (upper band).

The capital and top of the column were doubtless exactly like the corresponding parts in columns 2 and 3 (see pp. 96-97 for a full description). Immediately below the now destroyed five rings, which represent the cords that bind together the bundle of stalks forming the shaft, are two encircling bands of inscription.

a. The upper band consists of repetitions of the two cartouches of Ptolemy XIII, alternating with one another, and spaced with Hathor-heads. The cartouches and heads rest upon ṣe-a-signs. On either side of each cartouche is a uraeus from which hangs the ṣe-symbol.

The cartouches are:

The frame which encloses this scene and scene III consists of a roll, or torus, at top and sides. Above the torus at the top is a winged disk (see Pls. XIX, I, XXII, XXIII and XXIV), and this is surmounted by a cornice adorned with uraei (see Pls. XIX, I and XXIX). Outside the torus on either side is a single papyrus-reed upon the head of which rests a cobra that has entwined the stalk in its long coils. Doubtless the serpent on the north side wore the $\mathcal{A}$-crown and the one on the south side the $\mathcal{A}$-crown (cf. pp. 37 and 40 and Dendur. Pls. XXXII, XXXIV, and LXXXVIII).

 COLUMN 2 (Pls. XIX, I, XXIII, XXIX, and XXX).

Published: See L., D., Text IV, 175 for the end of text b.

This column and column 3 have the usual elaborate floral capitals of the period. The stalks of the bundle of reeds which form the column, are actually carved on the part of the shaft immediately below the capital. They terminate in five rings which represent the cords with which the bundle is tied. Beneath these five rings there are two bands of inscription encircling the column.

a. The upper band consists of repetitions of the two cartouches of Ptolemy XIII placed side by side (resting each on the sign $\mathcal{A}$ and surmounted by $\mathcal{A}$). alternating with the figure $\mathcal{A}^{(1)}$. From the tip of each of the $\mathcal{A}$-sticks held by this figure hangs the $\mathcal{A}$-symbol, while the end of each stick terminates in $\mathcal{A}$ (not $\mathcal{A}$).

Column 3 has the same elaborate floral capital as column 2, while the treatment of the stalks, and the cords that tie them, is identical in both cases. Below the cords there are two bands of text a and b.

a. The upper band, is the same as on column 2, except that the ▼-symbols face ←.

b. The lower band, is as follows: ➔ Live the good god, who stretches out the firmament, king of Upper and Lower Egypt, Ptolemaios-living-for-ever Beloved-of-Isis, beloved of Osiris, great god, lord of Abaton.»

b. Immediately adjoining \( a \) are the two cartouches of Ptolemy XIII: \[ \text{.} \]

d. Above the scene in a horizontal line:

'Utterance by the Pillar-of-his-Mother: The king of Upper and Lower Egypt, shining in the white crown, beautiful of appearing in the palace. entering into the temple of [On]nophris-triumphant to perform the ceremonies. . . . Osiris (?) the beneficent god, lord of Abaton.'

Archaeological details:

The king. Head-dress no. 1 with above it.

He holds the same emblems as in scene II.

The 'Pillar-of-his-Mother'. The same as in scene II.

The frieze above scene III is exactly the same as that above scene II. described on p. 32.

The entrance to the outer hall divides in half the screen, or curtain-wall, which is built between the columns of the façade to shut off the hall from the open court (1) that lay between it and the pylon. This door like the usual Ptolemaic and Roman screen-door (2), has no architrave either on the east or west side of the screen. Instead there is a slight projection at the top of either jamb in which, on the east face of the screen, is the upper socket for the door-pivot. These projections are surmounted by the ordinary palm-branch cornice (Pls. XXIX, XXXIV and XXXVI) (3) which is continued throughout the interior of the doorway.

(1) In this court a church must have been erected in Christian times. The foundation of the apse is still visible in the threshold of the entrance to the outer hall (see the ground-plan on Pl. 1, and Pls. XIX, 1 and XXXVI, 9). The arch in the pylon gateway must also have formed part of the church.

(2) Cf. similar doors at Edfu, Philae, Dendur, Kalabsheh and Dakkeh.

as well (Pls. XXXI, XXXII and XXXV). Beneath the whole length of the cornice and down the outer edge of the east face of the east jambs and the west face of the west jambs runs the roll or torus, ornamented with a pattern of binding

\[ \text{Pls. XXIX, XXXIV and XXXVI).} \]

East Face.

The North Jamb.

(Pl. XXIX.)

Published: See Denon, Voyage, 122, 2, for decoration on cornice.

On the edge of the jamb, outside the torus and continuing into the cornice, is a single papyrus stem upon the head of which sits Uto in the form of a cobra, wearing the \( \text{\textsuperscript{\textdegree}} \)-crown of Lower Egypt \( \frac{\text{\textdegree}}{\text{\textdegree}} \). The snake entwines the stalk of the plant in its long coils.

The Cornice.

In the centre of the cornice is a large \( \text{\textbullet} \) with a winged scarab in the midst of it. Above floats the solar disk furnished with pendulous uraei and wings that droop down on either side of the \( \text{\textbullet} \). The uraeus on the north side wears the \( \text{\textsuperscript{\textdegree}} \)-crown and the one on the south the \( \text{\textsuperscript{\textdegree}} \)-crown. Between the uraei are the signs \( \text{\textbullet} \text{\textsuperscript{\textdegree}} \text{\textsuperscript{\textdegree}} \text{\textsuperscript{\textdegree}} \text{\textbullet} \text{\textsuperscript{\textdegree}} \) = He of Edfu, great god, lord of heaven. For the whole design cf. p. 32. The edge of the cornice on either side of these symbols is carved to represent the palm-ribs of which the primitive cornice was composed (see Petrie, Decorative Art, p. 98 and 99).

The Projection.

A king \( \text{\textbullet} \text{\textsuperscript{\textdegree}} \) offers \( \text{\textbullet} \text{\textsuperscript{\textdegree}} \) to Khnum who is seated \( \text{\textbullet} \text{\textsuperscript{\textdegree}} \). The cartouches and the spaces for inscriptions are left blank.

The outer edge of the south, like the corresponding part of the north jamb, is decorated with a cobra entwining a papyrus-stem. The snake, which here represents Nekhbet, wears the \| crown of Upper Egypt.

THE ENTRANCE TO THE OUTER HALL : INTERIOR OF DOORWAY : NORTH WALL.

The walls are decorated with a cornice which, as we have already seen, is a continuation of the cornice of the jambs on the east face of the doorway. It is ornamented with the usual ribbing imitating palm-sticks, interspersed with the cartouches of Ptolemy XIII. Each cartouch rests on the $\text{\textsuperscript{2}A}$ symbol and is surmounted by $\text{\textsuperscript{2}A}$. The frieze, separated from the cornice by the torus, projects beyond the surface of the wall below and forms the rudimentary architrave, or projection, above the jambs on the west face of the doorway (see Pl. XXXVI, 1 and 2). These jambs unlike those on the east face of the doorway have no thickness or reveals, these being in the same plane as, and forming one with, the interior walls of the doorway. Both the north and south walls are decorated with eight rows of five repetitions of the group of symbols $\text{\textsuperscript{2}A}$ (see Pls. XXXIII and XXXV).

THE DEMOTIC GRAFFITI OF BIGEIH.

By F. Ll. Griffith.

The graffiti of the Bigeh temple cannot compare in interest with those of Philae. Although little remains of the temple, the survival of the main doorways has preserved a considerable number of graffiti, but they are short, ill-engraved, and in poor condition, and, until the exhaustive researches of the last few years, had not attracted the attention of any copyist. Upon the magnificent photographs of the scenes and hieroglyphic inscriptions made by the expedition... of the Prussian Academy the demotic graffiti are shewn on a minute scale, and Mr. Blackman made squeezes of most. The following notes are all that I can gather from a brief study of these materials.

No. 1. In the thickness of the south jamb of the pylon gate (see Pls. V and VI. i) two or three small graffiti can be detected.

No. 2. On the west face of the north jamb, between the heads of Isis and Horus (Pl. XIV) is a graffiti of 7 or 8 short lines in bad condition.

No. 3. On the west face of the south jamb about the figures of Isis and Horus, and in the band above the scene (Pl. XVII) are five graffiti. Over the crown of Horus is "The salutation of Hor(?) son of Pshenthof" badly engraved.

No. 4. In scene II on the east face of the screen wall (Pls. XXI-XXII and XXIX) are 4 longer lines, the first apparently reading: "His [name] remaineth here before Isis of Philae and Osiris of the Holy Place (i.e. Abaton)...."

No. 5. On the same wall over the head of the king in scene III (Pl. XXIII) is a graffiti of 3 lines much injured.

No. 6. In scene I, on the east face of the north jamb of the entrance to the outer hall (Pl. XXIX) are four lines in front of the feet of the king. It begins with the name "Esmet-..." and the groups moni, purr, tpt are seen in the following lines. In front of the head of the next figure below is one line "Pshenthof....." cf. no. 3.

No. 7. On the north side of the passage of this entrance, between the standing figure of the king and the goddess (?) kneeling behind him (Pl. XXXII) is a graffiti of 7 lines well preserved: "The salutation of Pakhnum son of Harpaesi son of Harheri son of Panasht (?). . . . . . the Agent, and Esmet p-wer (?) the hierogrammat. . . . . ."
No. 8. On the east face of the south jamb (Pl. XXXIV) are two graffiti. The upper one (above the king in scene I) is of 5 lines: "The salutation of Pabek son of Harpson . . . . . ."; the lower (above the king in scene III) consists of the name "Petemerawa".

GREEK INSCRIPTION.

This mutilated Greek graffito is engraved on the interior south wall of the pylon gate-way, below scene II. Professor A. S. Huxt of Queen's College, Oxford, very kindly made the following transcription from a wet squeeze, adding a translation and a few comments.

Rough lettering, 2-3 cent. A. D.

| L1 | Παχών θ | Year... Pachon 19. |
|    | τε προσκυνημα | the obeisance |
| Σμέτυσπακέλχακα | of Smetuispaek- |
| ούι εκ πατρος . . . . . . | oui son of etc. |
| 5 | ερταζίς Φίλα | his mother being |
|    | σεντεινι | etc. |
| Φίλων ματρός | |
| Εντμωσθατη | |
| απαλατοίκη | |
| 10 | Ισίδης κα τοις σγον | to Isis and the associated |
| νοώς θείος επ | gods. for good luck |
| [α]θω | |

II. 3 and 4. Σμέτυσπακέλχακα is, I suppose, all one name as εκ πατρος follows, Φίλα... being the grandfather. The αε before κου could be read αθ or λε.

II. 7 and 8. Φίλων looks like Philae, but I cannot read εκ or απε before it.

Perhaps we should read ισ Τμ... εντμ... or ισ (Σ) εντμ... Σων being the common fem. prefix.

I. 10. Κα after Ισίδης of course means κα, but there has been some correction, for the ι apparently has got left out.

II. 11 and 12. επ ζυχω = ις ζυχ . . ις, i.e. bonis auspiciis.

The Temple of Bizek.
